

To minimize the risk of contamination, the most important room (Class A) has the highest overpressure (+45 Pa). The next class has an overpressure 15 Pa lower and so on. These cascades ensure that contaminants are unable to enter the cleanzone easily.